

In the 1900's, it was rare to see a black bear, but now you can find them in Oklahoma's Eastern region and in the Panhandle. Their growing population is an important part of the state's wildlife diversity.

