

An aerial satellite image showing a grid of agricultural fields. A green border highlights a specific section of the fields in the upper left. The fields are arranged in a grid pattern, with some showing signs of being recently plowed or planted. A winding river or canal is visible on the right side of the image. The overall terrain appears to be a mix of agricultural land and natural vegetation.

HQ East Fields